

IN THE ABSTRACT:

Please add an abstract as follows:

A method and system for transmitting notifications to users of a logistic system. Different events within the logistic system are used to call up different modules having respectively associated functions. The modules produce notification orders which are transmitted to a central sending component, which produces notifications which correspond to orders and sends said notifications to the users.